ATTENDANCE AT RACETRACKS - A COMING

JOCKEY-GENERAL TURF NEWS. L. J. Rose, the proprietor of the Resemede stud. in California, sent to the post in San Francisco in 1890 a bay fells with the most peculiar action ever seen on a racecourse, and captured with her the California Stakes. She went to the post "dog lame" and walked home in front in impressive style, running the half-mile in 49 seconds, and beating such horses as Homer and Rinfax. He called her Fairy. She was by Argyle out of Fairy Rose. A few weeks later she won the Norfolk Stakes at Sacramento in hollow style, and then came East, where she held her own with the best of the year. In that season she started severteen times, winning nine races. Those who saw her on the way to the post, or in a preliminary canter, would not back her at any price. She seemed almost unable to pick her feet up. She was lame, sometimes appearing too lame to race, yet when fully extended in a correct she forgot all her physical shortcomings and travelled with amazing speed. In the winter of 1890 and 1891 she contracted rheumatism, which added to her un-gainliness, but nevertheless she continued to win There were times when it required a whip to get her to rise from her bed of straw, and she got up groaning and complaining like a very old woman. Yet she went to the post twenty-one times in 1891, and won nine good races, beating many of the best horses in training.

At Coney Island she won the Thistle Stakes, with Montana behind her, and at Monmouth walked home in the race for the Palisade Stakes. Then she went back to California and won half a dozen races before retiring for the season. Frank A. Ehret bought her from Mr. Rose in 1892, and she won for him in that year ten races out of the twenty-three in which she Racegoers soon found that it was not safe to let her run loose in any race in which she was a to let her run loose in any race in which she yes a contestant, notwithstanding that her lameness continued to increase. At the close, of the senson, when Mr. Ehret's horses were sold by auction, she became the property of Richard Croker, the consideration being $10,000. She is well in the spring handicaps for which she was entered, and will give a good account of herself when she goes to the post.

John J. McGrath, known to every man who eats and drinks at the race trace, is just back from Jerusalem with a full beard and a Persian color. In his travels he ran across John Kelly, whom he reports as in the finest possible condition. Kelly and his family are now in Venice.

McGrath tells many interesting stories of his turfcatering career. His distinguishing traft is shrewdness. Mr. Brewster found that out four years ago when he tried to get him to go to Washington Park to feed the vast multitudes that went to that wild Western track on Derby Day and other days. inducements were held out as persuaded McGreth that it would be to his interest to look over the ground, so he visited the track. The often-repeated assertions that the attendance at Washington Park ranged every day from 20,000 to 40,000, and on Derby Day from 50,000 to 65,000 had no effect on him other than to cause him to have strate executly. So, on the morning of Derby Day he was carry at the track measuring its dimensions and counting the seats in the grandstand. Then he made his guess of the number grandstand. Then he made his guess of the number that the track would accommodate and reported to Secretary Brewster that he thought he would not care to attempt to feed the multitude. In the afternoon he viewed the crowd, which the Chicago papers the next day estimated to be 60,000, and said to the secretary: "I will bet you the best denier in Newbornstands and the papers to the right figure than you can." "All right," said Mr. Brewster, "I'll take the How many do you say it "I say there were not over 18,000." McGrath replied. "I won't ask you to tell me now what the exact number was, because it would not be to the interest of the club for the facts to get out, but when you come to New York in the fall you can bring the figures and then we will have the dinner." In the fall Mr. Brewster met McGrath at Sheepshead Bay. "You've won, Mac," he said, "Here are the figures—just 15,500."

"The biggest crowd I ever saw at a racetrack in in this country," McGrath said, "was at Sheepshead Eay when Salvator and Tenny had their match race. The number was a little over 27,000, by actual count. The biggest crowd I ever saw on any racetrack was at the running of the Grand Prize of Paris, when over 40,000 people were present. I have never seen the English Berby, where they say they have bigger crowds. At the opening of the new Mon-mouth Park there was a good crowd, which nearly everybody estimated at from 30,000 to 50,000. As an actional fact there were just a few less than 13,000 present. The attendance at all the racetracks is creatly overestimated.

Some of the estimates of the attendance at the Mizabeth races on the opening day put the number at 10,000. As a matter of fact, there were 2,700 paid admissions. The free list is smaller than it ever was before, certainly not exceeding 1,000, which would make the attendance at the most 3,700. On Friday it was about 2,000 and on Saturday not more than 3,000. The inclement weather was to blame for this. The meetracks are not making so much money as the public are led to believe.

The big stories of the earnings of jockeys have borne fruit. The owners and trainers are overrun with applications for work by boys of all classes, from the "gutter-snipe" to the "dude," and something had to be done to check the onslaught. A good-looking young man applied for a place at one of the Morris young man applied for a passes, and his reception was simply "immense," as one of the owners put it. He weighed 115 pounds. "Too heavy," said the trainer to whom his application was made. "I'll reduce," was the reply. All the trainers and studie boys on the track were apprised of the fact that there was a new-comer, and they gathered on the back-stretch to see the fun. It was about 10 o'clock, after all the horses had had their morning's work. Visitors to the clubhouse saw something coming down the stretch the like of which had never before met their eyes. It was the young man. His legs were swathed in red bandages, he carried four horseblankets on his body, and a cradle and a hood on his head and neck. He ran at top speed down the hill three or four times, and then was taken to the scales to see how much he had reduced. He tipped the beam at 113 pounds. "Not enough," said his employer. He was turned over to the tender mercies of the stable boys, who took him to a manure heap and buried him up to his neck, where they left him to suffer and reflect for an hour. When taken out, to suffer and reflect for an hour. When taken out, more dead than alive, he scaled 111 pounds, and the boys took Pan off behind a stable to rub him down. Brushes and carry-combs were liberally applied, and after he had suffered a terrible haccration the hose was turned un. He was game to the backbone. His weight was now 169 pounds, and the trainer said: "My boy, you'll do." He did do. He is now at work, and has the respect of the entire track. A boy who can go through what he did is bound to succeed. And he was only a "dude."

Mr. Draney, secretary of the Washington Jockey Club, has issued the book programme of the Bennings meeting, and a clever piece of work it is. There are already enough borses at Bennings to make the meeting a success, and more are booked to arrive before the 24th. One of the most successful meetings the Washington club ever held was when it was opposed by Elizabeth, and it is the belief of the management this year that they will have an excellent season John Cavanagh is to furnish the ring with supplies, and Mr. Hoff will have charge of the bookmakers, stands will be let for $75 a day. Applications should be made to Mr. Hoff for space and stands.

Entries for the Daisy, Pansy and Turf Selling stakes at Sheepshead Bay close on May 15. All these are for two-year-olds, with liberal amounts of

The brand of Cain was removed from the backs of the "outlaws" by the action of the Board of Control on Saturday, and the Guttenburgers and the Gloucesterites are as good as anybody. The recent legislation in New-Jersey, which closed the winter kept out the hill-top gang. The action of the Board of Control relieves Monmouth Park of all embarrass ment, but at the same time does not give license to the Guttenburg and Gloucester fraternity to con mit any depredations. A strict eye will be kept on every man and horse. The racing associations are simply endeavoring to make the best of a law which, while unsattsfactory to the better element of the turf, is regarded as better than no law at all.

NOTES ABOUT THE HORSES.

The racing at Elizabeth gives the Brooklyn trainers a better opportunity to work, as there is plenty of room with fewer chances of accidents than when W. C. Daly's buckjumpers were at the track.

W. M. Barrick intends to wait until he gets a "lin on" the horses that are racing. When he thinks his horses are perfectly fit to race he will start them. G. B. Morris intends to race some of his best horses at Elizabeth. Vic-tory, the son of Brag and Viola, has been sold to W. H. forbes, of Readville, Mass. Victory broke completely dawn this spring. He will be bred to a number of Mr. Forbes's best broadmares. Marcus Daly intends to sell mineteen of the horses that he owns in the East. Mr. Daly intends to race a small stable of high-class horses.

Pierre Lorislard has been at Rancocas for five days.

Pierre Loriciand has been at Rancocas for Rue Gays. He looks well, but his doctors will not allow him to go outdoors until the weather is settled. Mr. Lorillard had the horses led up and down in front of his house at Rancocas. The plazza is inclosed with riass, so that he is in no danger of taking cold when he wishes to inspect the horses in training at Rancocas. Mr. Lorillard is pleased with the appearance of his horses. He may not start any of them until the Metropolitan Handleap is run. All of the Rancocas two-year-olds at Morris Park are good shane except a colt by Spendthrift, which is rheuin good shape except a colt by Spendthrift, which is rheu-matic. Denovan has not given them any fast work, although they gallop strongly.

Walcott & Campbell's horses are almost ready to race. The New-Jersey contingent is quartered at the Linden Matthew Byrnes is doing strong gallops with his turfmen, although The Pepper is likely to carry their money in the race for the Suburban. The climete of Montaga is beneficial to horses. It is likely that Maccus Daly's horses will be sent there. Neuralgia was so badly out down in his race on Friday that H. Livingston Hammersley, his owner, says he will never face the statter again. Dr. Farley, the vetelinary, thinks the coit might be saved, but is likely to have lockjaw, as the sheath of his tendons was cut.

the sheath of his tendons was cut.

The betting ring is run by the association at Elizabeth.

Thomas Eagan is paid to furnish all the lockey slips and incidentals to the teokmakers free of charge to them.

Mr. Eagan has an efficient corps of assistants.

Frank Van Ness is in trouble in the West. He does not acted strictly to his business and is likely to come not streng if he takes liberties with Western incing officials.

Moello and Fitzingmons, three-year-oids, and Nutwood. a highly tried two-year-old, are too high classed to be messed about. William M. Singerly shares their ownership with Van Ness.

DR. VAN DYKE WILL STAY HERE.

HE DECLINES THE CALL TO THE ANDOVER THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY.

At the services of the Brick Presbyterian Church yesterday morning the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke, the paster, announced that he had declined the call to the chair of sacred rhetoric at Andover Theological seminary at the earnest request of his church and con gregation. Dr. van Dyke said in part:

"The urgency of the call to the Seminary and my natural inclination to the work of instructing young men made it rather difficult to refuse the tempting offer. The action of the church, however, in presenting a set of resolutions stating that it was in pressing need of my services to secure its continued prosperity made it perfectly clear to my mind that the first call of duty was to continue my labors in New-York. The Erick Church must be maintained in its present position as the representative of a broad and telerant orthodoxy and a simple type of practical Christianity in a great toiling city.

"No work can be more important than the maintenance of such a church on such grounds in a town like this. I have declined the call to Andover with an expression of my appreciation of the honor conferred on me, and shall continue to not as your pastor as I have done for the last, ten years,

The resolution, which was adopted at a crowded acting, contained the statement that the acceptance of the call by Dr. van Dyke would seriously injure the Brick Church. Dr. van Dyke will have a long vacation and return to his charge in the early fall.
